Fabergé-Style Eggs – A Colorful Seasonal Delight

For centuries, brightly colored eggs have been given as gifts to symbolize the new life that occurs in nature each spring. But between 1885 and 1917 a new tradition began when goldsmith Carl Fabergé created magnificent gem-encrusted eggs for the Empress of Russia which are valued at millions of dollars today.

Fabergé also made miniature eggs, some no larger than jelly beans, and these miniature eggs became very popular gifts. That miniature tradition continues today with a series of hand-made sterling silver Fabergé-style eggs which are available at surprisingly modest cost.

Each egg is a work of art, hand made by Russian craftsmen in the tradition of Carl Fabergé. Eggs have filigree patterns decorated with 24K gold gilt and vivid multicolor baked enamels. Many are accented with colored gems such as garnet, onyx, lapis, turquoise, amber, and rose quartz. Also, some colorful eggs actually open to reveal tiny sculptures inside such as angels, rabbits, ladybugs, and many other objects.

These fabulous eggs can be worn as pendants, locket, earrings, or on necklaces and bracelets all year round. And there are dozens of beautiful designs from which to choose.
